

What Are Marijuana Moonrocks?

Even experienced consumers can sometimes be found wondering, "what are marijuana moon rocks?"

Sometimes known as the "cannabis caviar," they're highly potent weed nuggets that will send you to the moon and back, in all likelihood.

Most marijuana connoisseurs agree unconditionally that smoking moon rocks – the most potent cannabinoid as well as terpene-rich nuggets – will give you an insane high.

Want to know how to smoke moon rocks, what they are made of, and what side effects they carry? Read on!

What Are Moon Rocks Made Of?

Moon rocks are small nuggets of marijuana flower covered in a marijuana concentrate and coiled in terpene-rich kief.

Due to the combination of pure bud with THC-rich concentrate, it gives you a high second to none.

Initially, they were created with a strain of marijuana called Girl Scout Cookies, better known as GSC – an Indica dominant (60%) hybrid.

However, more recently, producers have found that they can use any weed strain; all they have to do is merge it with concentrate and kief.

These balls of THC were popularized in the US by a rapper named Ricardo Emmanuel Brown, famously known by the stage name Kurupt – the erstwhile VP of Death Row Records.

With his associate Dr. Zodiak, Kurupt trademarked these moonrocks, tagging them as the most potent buds in town.

Moon Rocks Weed Effects

The impact of the moonrock weed varies based on its THC level and the user's tolerance, among other things.

Even though you may feel some impact upon your first sniff, usually, it takes approx. 30-minute for the full effects to pop up.

Furthermore, based on how much you've smoked moon rocks, the high can last a few hours or a full day. Nevertheless, here are some of the moon rock weed effects that you may experience:

- Dry eyes
- Cottonmouth
- Dehydration
- Munchies

- Increased heartbeat
- Anxiety
- Paranoia
- Headaches
- Dizziness
- Nausea
- Sleepiness
- Impaired memory
- Coughing

However, if you want to avoid these side effects, you should start slow. Eat something before smoking and ensure you're well-hydrated.

How To Smoke Moonrocks

A responsible smoker's first question would be, how strong are moon rocks? Though the efficacy of every moon rock batch varies, the consensus is they've over 50% Tetrahydrocannabinol (THC). In comparison, most flowers tend to have only 20%.

Hitting them produces a high terpene-rich, pleasant penchant of kief, which can compel you to look for the nearest seat.

What about "the high?" It starts in your head first and then spreads throughout your body, all the way to the toes. Therefore, they're recommended only for advanced marijuana consumers.

So, now that you know how strong moon rocks are, let's jump to how you can smoke moon rocks:

Roll A Joint

The simplest technique to smoke your cannabis-filled rocks is by rolling a joint. Use your regular dope as the foundation for the joint and place small pieces of moon rocks in between.

Make sure to cut the rocks with a cutting knife, rather than crumbling them in a crusher to avoid wasting your precious keef or the melting concentration in the hands.

Finally, roll a joint! Light it up and have fun!

Use Glassware

If you're using a pipe or a bong to smoke moon rocks, make sure you cut it correctly because it's not the typical flower you consume every day. It's greasy and thick and needs to be torn apart bit by bit.

Once it's ready, inhale evenly and slowly, and ensure to wait a while between each hit.
